

The Account continues to do exactly what it was designed to do and since launch the ARC has significantly outperformed gold bullion in bar form. With gains of 20.09% since launch the ARC has shown its true worth; statistics reveal that gold bullion in bar form has returned a net loss of -5.72 % over the same period.

Recorded performance data portrays that the account has outperformed gold bullion by 25.81% since its launch sixteen months ago; this ranks this investment among the best performing bullion investments in the world. With an average return of 1.61% per month it is the envy of many in the industry.

Having conducted a detailed analysis of bullion funds and related investments offered by other investment houses our study revealed that their performance has been very lacklustre. In a purely statistical comparison, RIO ARC Bullion account valued in USD has outperformed all comparable physical gold bullion investments through out 2014 to date.
